

GET INVOLVED + GET CONNECTED + GIVE BACK

Seattle magazine's Community Involvement Program (CIP)

Judith Paulsen

Meet Judith Paulsen!

Featured Business Partner:
Blue Highway Games, Queen Anne
Supporting: Queen Anne Helpline

Blue Highway Games on Queen Anne is all about community, family and kids. Their motto is "Unplug & Reconnect". They sell all kinds of games and puzzles but connecting people is their top priority, providing space for neighbors to make friends and have fun.

Judith Paulsen, who moved here from Austria, has been with Blue Highway for more than 7 years. Judith's experience to move to a new country and to adapt to a new culture inspired her to get involved and help others by volunteering with Seattle World School. The owners of Blue Highway were very supportive of Judith's involvement in various community programs, giving her the flexibility she needs.

"The school is a rare opportunity," she says, "for the people of Seattle to support an institution that brings young refugees together from many countries—countries often in violent conflict with one another. And that provides an environment in which these youth can transcend those conflicts through learning and friendship."

Judith is passionate about giving back and has developed programs at the Seattle World School around youth inline skating, soccer and bicycle riding, providing a friendly and fun environment where English and life skills are learned.

Across the city, business partners work with us to give back the profits of the sale of Seattle magazine (40%) to a local community non-profit.

Look for CIP magazines around Seattle!

seattle
magazine
smart.
savvy.
essential.

Community
Involvement
Program

MAKE A DIFFERENCE.

Sign up for Seattle magazine's Community Involvement Program
Contact Mike Jones at 206.452.2998 or mike.jones@tigeroak.com.